With the majority of their clients referred by other law firms, White & Oliver are the attorneys other attorneys turn to. "We are often called in toward the end of the legal process, to try cases other firms have prepared," partner Dan White says. Many of the firm's attorneys are experienced trial lawyers who between them have thousands of hours of trial work and dozens of important verdicts. Working primarily in defense, the firm prides itself on its ability to take over cases on short notice, and on bringing clients the results they need.

White has won important verdicts in business, legal malpractice, product liability and construction litigation. Partner Susan Oliver specializes in employment law, where she has been instrumental in helping clients take home defense verdicts in wrongful termination suits. She also has significant experience in sexual harassment cases and related matters. White and of-counsel attorneys Steve Amundson and Bob Gallagher are all members of the American Board of Trial Advocates, a prestigious group consisting of the top 1 to 2 percent of all lawyers.

White was named San Diego Defense Lawyer of the Year for 2002 by the San Diego Defense Lawyers Association. He also handles plaintiffs' cases, including obtaining a $1 million verdict for a client and casualty insurers. The firm has also represented many national and local law firms and lawyers.

White & Oliver not only provides expert trial representation, they frequently work with clients to prevent such suits and to resolve disputes
